OUR KEY APPROACHES

We focus our impact on transforming unequal systems that limit the rights and opportunities of women and marginalised communities by applying:

Human rights-based approach (HRBA)

Our programmes and projects promote political, social, economic, environmental, and cultural rights by strengthening the capacity of individuals and communities to claim their rights and supporting governments, local authorities and other duty bearers to fulfil their obligations.

Inclusive Systems Approach

Ensuring local ownership of development interventions is key to achieving a large and lasting impact. Thus, our role is to facilitate the engagement of local actors in enhancing systems' future capability to function and adapt to changing realities.

Conflict sensitivity

We apply conflict sensitivity across all projects and activities to reduce the risk that we inadvertently contribute to exacerbating tensions and creating conflict. This approach also helps us to spot opportunities to foster social cohesion.

OUR COMMITMENT TO PARTNERSHIP AND LOCALISATION

We are convinced that different actors with their specific capacities contribute to successful development processes. Building upon our experience in developing capacities and proactively connecting organizations, the private sector and public players, we promote the establishment of partnerships with national actors. This cooperation is based on shared vision, mutual learning, development of joint competencies to increase local partners' self-determination and jointly achieve a lasting impact and social justice.
